Guest Lectures (1997-2001)
While serving in ministry I gave a number of guest lectures and sermons at McAfee School of Theology (Mercer University), Candler School of Theology (Emory University), Carson-Newman College, Shorter College on topics including women in ministry, youth ministry, church staff leadership, and worship in the Baptist tradition.

Previous Teaching and Research Experience

Graduate Teaching Fellowship (2007-2008)

Vanderbilt University ♦ Center for Teaching ♦ Nashville, Tennessee

Responsibilities included individual consultations with graduate student instructors; video and classroom observations; small group analyses; planning and leading workshops about pedagogy for undergraduates, graduate teachers and faculty; facilitating a pedagogy reading group; assisting with Teaching Certificate training; research about pedagogical issues in university teaching.

Graduate Assistant to the “Teaching for Ministry” Grant (2003-2004)

Vanderbilt University ♦ Divinity School and Graduate Department of Religion ♦ Nashville, Tennessee

Responsibilities included working on a team of principal investigators (Bonnie Miller-McLemore, Patout Burns and Dean, James Hudnut-Beumler), researching strategies to improve doctoral education for those who plan to teach in seminaries; participating in a bi-weekly faculty collegium; and administering numerous logistical and financial details of the grant. The work of the study grant resulted in the new Program in Theology and Practice and $10 million Lilly Endowment Grant to Vanderbilt’s Divinity School.

Teaching Fellow & Discussion Group Leader (2001-2005)

Vanderbilt University ♦ Divinity School and Graduate Department of Religion ♦ Nashville, Tennessee

During my doctoral studies at Vanderbilt I worked as a teaching assistant for four courses in Pastoral Theology and American Religious History. Responsibilities in these courses included leading one or two sections of weekly discussion; contributing to course design and class assignments; grading weekly assignments, essays and term papers; facilitating role dramas; and lecturing several times each semester. In these courses I worked with Bonnie Miller-McLemore, Kathleen Flake and James P. Byrd.

Research Assistant (1988-2001)

During college, seminary and graduate school I worked as a research assistant for various faculty. Responsibilities in these positions included copy editing faculty articles and essays, bibliographic research, compiling a Religion and Personality area handbook, designing a departmental advertisement; grading student exams and papers, formatting and organizing lecture notes and sermons, bibliographic research, and working in library archives.

Additional Ministry Experience

Current Ecclesial Memberships

My roles and responsibilities in my local congregation and for state and national religious bodies include service on numerous boards and workgroups, leadership of committees, new initiatives, strategic planning process; worship, workshop and retreat leading; teaching and preaching; and consultation with numerous pastors and denominational leaders; chairing discernment and transition processes with a variety of groups. The following are my primary affiliations.

Glendale Baptist Church ♦ Nashville, Tennessee ♦ 2001 to present

Alliance of Baptists ♦ Atlanta, Georgia ♦ 1994 to present

Cooperative Baptist Fellowship ♦ Atlanta, Georgia ♦ 1992 to present

Cooperative Baptist Fellowship of Tennessee ♦ 2001 to present

Baptist Women in Ministry ♦ 1989 to present

Baptist Peace Fellowship of North America ♦ 1998 to present

Retreat, Workshop and Spiritual Formation Leader

Since completing college I have maintained a steady schedule of retreat and workshop leading on a wide variety of topics including worship, education, spiritual formation, youth and children's ministry, and pastoral care. In this role I also facilitated a partnership between the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship (CBF) and Upper Room Ministries (URM) for the purpose of supporting individuals and churches in the work of spiritual formation. That work included managing the marketing, resource development, financial planning and administrative detail of this entrepreneurial initiative. It laid the groundwork for a full time coordinator for CBF's Spiritual Formation Network. I have also planned national training events, workshops, and consultations for laity and clergy.

Freelance Editor and Consultant

Since 1990 I have worked on a host of projects in addition to my own writing contributions to church and academy that bring together the collaborative efforts of others and make them available to the wider church. Responsibilities in this area include assistance with grant writing, which resulted in a $10,000 "Valparaiso Project Grant to Strengthen Practices in Communities," entitled "A Resource for Practicing Our Faith in Missions;" serving as an outside reader and consultant to various curricular and devotional writing projects; bringing together writers for the sake of expanding resources for the church; contributing to the writing and editing of multiple resources in the Companions in Christ Series (Upper Room Ministries).
