THE SPIRIT OF TEACHING

Spirit and scholarship work hand-in-hand at Luther Seminary. We prepare Christian leaders to draw on academics, knowledge and on the wisdom born of faith, reflection and experience.

Our faculty is deeply committed to their students. They are internationally respected scholars, prolific writers and highly respected teachers of the church. Perhaps you have heard them teach or preach in your own congregation or in one of the Church's study series.

They are as spiritual as they are scholarly. Most are ordained and have served as pastors. They understand that the church is not simply a building or a collection of writings but a community of real people with real lives, so they incorporate practical considerations of congregational leadership into classroom discussions.
